

ACKNOWLEDGEMENTS

This curriculum is the result of the efforts of several individuals and groups. The Energy Center of the Missouri Department of Natural Resources provided funding for the project as well as technical review of the final curriculum. Development of the curriculum was coordinated by the departments environmental education unit and served as a natural extension of the previous energy courses offered to teachers by this unit.

The most important credit for this curriculum goes to the writing team assembled to create and review the lesson plans. Every member of the writing team possessed public school teaching experience. The team was tasked with brain-storming, writing and editing the lesson plans that appear in this curriculum. The goal was to create lesson plans that were written by teachers for teachers. The writing team listed below worked hard to develop the lessons contained in this curriculum, and it is our hope you find the lessons both practical and useful.
